Return to Work

To all our customers,

We sincerely hope that you and your families remain safe and well.

On the 11th May, we will be returning to work on a gradual build-up basis. Our re-opening will be in line with latest government advice and all staff will be adhering to strict social distancing measures. Please believe that we take the wellbeing of our staff and customers very seriously.

As we schedule your projects for survey and installation we will inform you of the specific details of these new measures, and what they mean for you and your customer. It is a requirement that these measures are followed by all concerned. The build-up must be gradual to make sure the new measures are as detailed as possible and working as planned. Nothing can be overlooked. We are confident they are thorough, and that with your support, we will be firing on all cylinders before too long. We remain well stocked with Königstone product and have good relationships with key suppliers to fulfil your requirements.

Office staff will remain working from home for the foreseeable future. Upgrades to the telephone system have taken place to allow for this change and therefore you will still be able to contact those familiar voices in the usual way.

These are unprecedented challenges, but like anything new, we will adjust and learn for each situation. Thank you in advance for your patience, cooperation and continued support during these testing times of transition.

Take care and stay safe.
